

Second Annual
High School Choral Leadership Workshop
Saturday, October 22, 2011

Dear High School Choir Director:

At its second annual Choral Leadership Workshop, to be held on Saturday, October 22, 2011, Los Robles Master Chorale will offer an opportunity for serious high school choral singers to work in an intimate setting on improving their individual singing and ensemble leadership skills.

This year's theme is MUSIC: Vocation or Avocation? In this all-day workshop, led by Los Robles Master Chorale Artistic Director and Los Angeles Master Chorale Associate Conductor Lesley Leighton, mixed quartets or octets of high school choral singers will focus on healthy choral tone, proper vowel production, blending voices, and artistic musical interpretation. A special session on vocal technique will also be given.

The quartets or octets will be selected by their own choir directors, with an eye toward those advanced singers sharing their improved knowledge and skills with their home choruses. Following the morning workshops and lunch provided by LRMC, all singers will attend sectionals and full rehearsals, then join together for an afternoon performance free to the public. Choir directors are invited to attend the workshop sessions with their students.

The repertoire for this event will be provided once the completed application form is received. Singers are expected to become familiar with their parts before attending the workshop. Selections will challenge the singers in language, rhythm and musical style.

Don't miss this special opportunity for professional-level musical training.

Yours truly,
